Art Unit: 2614

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lipton et al.

The apparatus embodied by the arrangement shown in Fig. 10 involves converting analog composite video (inputs video 1, 2, and 3) first into digital form using A/D convertor 6, and ultimately into RGB color components (output of element 10). Included are plural digital processors 7, 8 and 10.

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lipton et al. in view of Amano.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to integrate electronic components associated with each other, such as the A/D convertor and adjacent processor of Lipton, as is taught by Amano (e.g. col. 2 lines 40-44), for the well known benefits of minimizing circuit arrangement (space conservation being a primary consideration of the circuit designer), as well as for ensuring superior communication between the two components.

Art Unit: 2614

Applicant in fact admits that having A/D convertors and associated processors integrated is well known (last full paragraph on page 6 of his specification).

3. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lipton et al. in view of Ross.

It would also have been obvious to use any type of buffering in the system of Lipton (who uses FIFO components as memory 8 in his system of Fig. 10) as so preferred, consideration given to performance. Buffering in general is very well known and used in broad-reaching fields of endeavor, the benefits thereof being well accepted (improved data transfer for subsequent processing), such as the video/fax frame buffer 14 as shown by Ross who specifies its benefits (col. 3 lines 20-22).

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

5. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Victor R. Kostak whose telephone number is 703 305-4374. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday - Friday from 6:30am-3:00pm.
